OTHG History by John Justus

10 Years ago

October 2011

The lead article was about the passing of club member Pete Vander Meulen. Pete was a well-liked member who was the head chef at our club picnics. The club board members voted to add Pete's wife Donna to our list of honorary members. On a lighter note, club members Dan Moisio and Larry Schnore won trophies at the One Summer Nights show at the La Paz County Park. The car of the month was Greg Bowden's 1932 Ford sedan delivery. He found the car in the desert above Henderson Nevada in 1983 and had it on the road by 1985. There were several pages of items for sale but no mention of a 50\50 winner.

Hi Guys,

Tip this month will be from the Packardgram newsletter I receive once a month. Interesting info on different sealants. This might help you make a decision when faced with all the different alternatives when visiting the local parts store.

Packard Tips #49

Sealers and Threadlockers, which one to use.

Have you ever stood in your automotive parts store and wondered what kind of sealer to buy?

In some stores there is literally a wall of sealers and other products. In this article I will try to sort out the different types and what they should be used for. I will be referring to products made by the Loctite Corp., but any equivalent products would be satisfactory.

SEALERS

If you intend to assemble the parts without a paper or cork gasket then a Gasket Maker product is needed. The best is, The Right Stuff. If you want a less expensive product, Ultra Blue or Ultra Black would be the choice. For exhaust manifold gaskets, Ultra Copper.

If you are using paper or cork gaskets, Blue Silicone RTV on all gaskets except head and exhaust. For exhaust gaskets, High Temperature Silicone RTV. The Ultra series mentioned in the previous paragraph also worked well, so if you only want to have one type of sealer in your shop, those are the ones I recommend.

For close fitting machined flanges, such as the rear main bearing cap use an Anaerobic Gasket Maker. Loctite 515 for cast iron or steel, 518 for aluminum. An anaerobic sealer will not cure until the air supply is cut off so you can put it on a part and leave it for several hours and it will seal as soon as the part is installed. They are resistant to just about anything.

For head gaskets, the Copper SPRAY-A- GASKET is the choice.

For hoses, PERMATEX INDIAN HEAD Gasket Shellac Compound works well.

Pipe threads – Loctite PST Pipe Sealant.

Glass – PERMATEX Flowable Silicone Glass & Windshield Sealer.

THREADLOCKERS

There are three types, removable, permanent, and penetrating.

Removeable – Loctite 243 BLUE. This is better than the often seen 242, as it is designed to work with oily parts.

Permanent – Loctite 262 RED. Requires extra effort and localized heat to remove.

For heavy duty situations where shock and vibration are factors, Loctite 271 RED.

For high temperatures situations Loctite 272 RED.

Large diameter, over 1" Loctite 277 RED.

PENETRATING – where you might wish to apply it after parts are assembled, Loctite 290 GREEN.

Where you do not want the parts to seize, Loctite Anti-Seize Compound. Excellent on wheel bolts.

There are many other products made by Loctite as well as other manufacturers, however, the ones I have listed in this article will cover any sealing, or threadlocking situation that you will run into on your Packard.
